THE STAMM FAMILY OF OHIO AND KENTUCKY

Edw. J. Ronsheim, Sr. Anderson, Ind.

Stamm: - "trunk or stem". Or, using a liberal genealogical translation, the word "Stamm" is the basis for a long list of family names, it being the base or trunk syllable from which other names are formed through the addition of various suffixes.

Official records prove that the family centered first in the Palatinate and slowly spread from there southward into Switzerland with the Rhine River to the east, the Moselle on the north and west to some extent and the Saar on the south being the general extreme limits. The Palatinate was the home of two major groups, that which came to America in the early 1700's and the Ohio-Kentucky family which came a century later. An interesting side-light was given by one of the Kentucky family who reports have passed a "Stamm Brewery" between Trier (Treves) and Coblenz along the Moselle during the war. The Swiss segment of the family also came to Pennsylvania and then moved westward. Probably its best known member today is Dr. John S. Stamm, bishop-emeritus of the Evangelical United Brethern Church and living in Harrisburg, Pa. His ancestors were Swiss as were those of G. W. Stamm, of Chicago, widely known in farm circles.

Generally, the early Stamms were Lutheran. But about 1700 many of those in the Palatinate and Switzerland became Mennonites and as such soon became persecuted. This along with the fact that the homeland was constantly the battleground of many nations brought about the first great movement to America. From 1730 to 1775 official records show a constant flow through Rotterdam to eastern Pennsylvania.

Ship records, land warrants, marriage records and, finally, the census of 1790 show the name of Stamm spelled many different ways, frequently being used as the "stem" with a suffix changing it to a new name. It appears as Stam, Stamm, Stammz, Stammin, Stamman, Stamen and on and on. But all these people had ancestors in the Palatinate. Of course the Palatinate often had another name itself as it came under the rule of surrounding states. It even was part of Bavaria for many years. This Pennsylvania family has since spread to cover the nation with many of its members in Ohio and Kentucky. They are apart from the Ohio-Kentucky family although having the same given names confuses researchers.

The records show that Conrad Stammz, one of "45 Palitines and Families", reached Pennsylvania on September 5, 1730, from Rotterdam in the ship "Alexander and Ann". On September 28, 1733, came Anna Barbara Stammin, 26, on the ship, "Richard and Elizabeth".

Peter Stam, age 20, and Johann Stam, came on September 21, 1742, sailing from Rotterdam in the "Francis and Elizabeth". Then Johann Jacob Stammz, in the ship "Charlotte" on September 5, 1743, one of the "foreigners imported from Rotterdam" and, 25 days later, Johannes Stamms on the "Phoenix".

Within the next few years came Adam Stam, 25, in the "Samuel", and Henrich Frederick Stamman, 43, in the "Neptune". Among the last was Adam Stam, who reached Philadelphia in the "Union" on September 30, 1774. All a part of 30,000 from the upper Rhine who came to America.

THE STAMM FAMILY OF OHIO AND KENTUCKY - 2

On September 30, 1748, Jacob Stomm, probably the passenger from the ship "Charlotte", received a land warrant for 100 acres in Philadelphia County. Between 1761 and 1796, three of many, Maria Sibilla Stamm, Elizabeth Stamm and Johann Rudolph Stamm were married in the German Reformed Church in Philadelphia.

Now, with the backgrounds explained, it is time to turn to Philip Peter Stamm and his wife, Marie Elizabeth Seil, the ancestors of the whole of the Ohio-Kentucky line. Other records herewith tell part of the tale of thirty days on the Atlantic, a terrible storm on Lake Erie which nearly brought disaster. One even explains that they came to Sardinia in Brown County because Philip Peter had a brother living there. No proof ever did exist on this and it now is known to be an entirely false tradition.

Old German records, also attached, add to the background and probably help explain why a family seemingly well fixed with worldly goods changed nations as a unit and seemingly leaving the old home at the Christmas season. These records, from official books in Germany, show that "a desire of a daughter caused them (the family) to move away". Beyond all doubt this daughter was Elizabeth, born in 1818. The full story never will be known and old histories but add to the confusion with long accepted errors given as facts. More of this appears later.

Philip Peter came from a part of the family which had remained Lutheran and he and his children were part of the church at Arnheim. As late as 1913 there yet were men in the Palatinate who remembered the children of the family as "mischievous boys, full of devilish tricks", to quote the mayor of Waldmohr. And despite the stern upbringing in a German family this spirit of fun was part of the make-up of most of the children of Philip Peter. It was particularly true with the eldest son, Peter, and many are the family tales about him.

Philip Peter was an educated man, a school teacher in his native Niedermohr and later in Dunzweiler. These tiny villages, and Breitenbach, appear in the family story in Europe. The latter place is on many large scale maps due northeast from Saarbrücken/Saar thirty kilometers.

Born at Niedermohr in 1793, Philip Peter Stamm moved to Dunzweiler in 1824 where the family lived in "a teacher's boarding house" until they left for America in 1840. That they were a provident family is best shown by the fact he had money for ten fares to Ohio and for a farm once he arrived.

Letters and other records are part of this story so much can be left unsaid on these pages. All but this, that though smaller in numbers than the kin from Pennsylvania, these people, too, have entered into every walk of life with success and have spread until they cover the nation.

In Brown County Philip Peter was a farmer, teacher and "banker"; the last meaning that he put out his own money at interest and, according to his estate, accumulated a considerable holding of property and cash by the time he died in 1863.

The older son, Peter, was primarily a farmer. But his nephews and nieces remembered him mainly for the "tricks" he played on his more staid brother, Jacob. Of the time he sat on the curb outside Jacob's home at noontime and munched dry bread and meat. Or of his climbing to the peak of his home during the Civil War and waving the "Stars and Bars" while shouting for "Jeff Davis". He fell off and broke a leg yet enjoyed his fun, knowing how strong an Abolishionist Jacob had been. Or of how he shouldered half a dressed and frozen hog and walked with it to Cincinnati, sixty miles.

Jacob was more like his father, strict and a teacher. Yet his children had all the traits assigned the earlier generation when it came to fun and tricks. Jacob was not only an outstanding bandsman and writer of music but equally adept with the small truck farm he operated and at his lathe. He taught music for thirty years and at the Arnheim church early records show his name and the amount given him for instructions. Jacob led his own band into the Civil War until it lost most of its instruments while under cannon fire at Pittsburg Landing and Shiloh. Here the bandsmen acted as hospital corpsmen and stretcher bearers during battle. And Jacob contracted the illness which helped make him an invalid when the group used water from a pond found, next morning, to contain dead horses.

It is odd that in this same battle, at the "Sunken Road", was Andrew Vogel, of Iowa, brother of Jacob's wife, Martha. Andrew was one of a dozen to survive terrible fighting and go to Andersonville a prisoner of war. It is timely here to suggest that Jacob may have met Martha as both families traveled by canal from Cleveland to Portsmouth in 1840 although they may have met in Brown County afterwards. The German settlement was only two miles from the French settlement in Highland County.

An ardent Abolitionist, along with so many of the German element in Brown County, he is said to have aided slaves in their escape by way of the "underground railway" which crossed the Ohio at Ripley. Tension over the Tilden-Hayes election brought on his first stroke in 1876.

Philip Stamm, named for his father, is shown in official records as being a gunsmith.

With the close of the Civil War and the death of Philip Peter and Marie Elizabeth Stamm, the second generation started the shifting from which the family spread over much of the country. Records are not clear as to how the extensive estate of Philip was divided, the will showing only that Jacob received the home in Sardinia.

It is believed that Philip, Jr., was living in Georgetown and probably received his share in cash. That Charles (Carl), who had married but a week prior to the death of his father, also received cash and had taken up residence in Washington Township. And that Peter probably received land. All the children were married before the mother died. Her picture exists.

Deed book S-18, page 180, for Brown County, shows that "Phillip P. Stamm" purchased 66 2/3 acres from Edward Pettyjohn, February 25, 1841. This land probably was near the Slab Camp Cemetery although Philip did acquire other holdings and a home in Sardinia before his death. For the first place he gave $640, money he must have brought from Germany.

Peter Stamm, the son of Phillip Peter, purchased 89 acres (Deed Book W-22, page 141) from Frances Fike on April 2, 1847 for $100. This was just after the death of his first wife. On March 24, 1851 (Deed Book A-26, page 572) he purchased 91 acres from Z. Ketterman for $500.

Jacob Stamm purchased a lot in Sardinia from Samuel Rankin, September 22, 1853, for $240 and sold it on March 24, 1857. With this sale Jacob moved his family to Ripley, Ohio, and became the first of the sons to move out of the home district. Here he established one of the two main stems of the Brown County family.

It seems likely that the family established by Peter Stamm (Jr.) is the greatest in numbers of the Brown County group. And this family became "lost" for some 75 years, being "relocated" only because one of its members secured a marriage license in Brown County and named his parents.

With the close of the Civil War and with soil in northern Brown County badly depleted farmers from southern Ohio crossed the river to Kentucky where they bought farms once cultivated by slave labor. In this move went the sons of Peter Stamm (Jr.), Peter III and Frederick. Just when they went is uncertain but seemingly after the death of the mother in 1865 and before late 1866 when Peter III's oldest child was born in Bracken County, near Berlin. The oldest child of Frederick also was born there late in 1867.

It is certain that Peter (Jr.) remained in Brown County because his sixth child was confirmed at Arnheim in 1870 and his wife died in Ohio in 1873. However, the fact that several daughters seem to have married in Kentucky could indicate that Peter lived with his children for a time, maybe until they moved on to Lewis County. He died in Brown County and his will made it clear he was a resident of that county.

It also is interesting to note that Peter's (Jr.) younger sister married at Maysville in 1852 and resided there until her death. It could be that this early Kentucky tie finally brought others of the family to Bracken, Mason and Lewis Counties.

In Bracken County the Stamm family lived on the high uplands. This soil, like that of Brown County across the river, failed under the raising of tobacco. It was then, shortly after 1880, the family moved eastward into Lewis County and settled on Kinniconick Creek and spread from there into adjoining areas with a major group up Indian Creek. Large scale maps show a branch from upper Indian Creek named "Stem" Creek, certainly "Stamm" but spelled as pronounced in that area. Stamm Cemetery in that same area is the burial place of many of the name.

Like the ancestor who first came to Brown County and as has been the case in other branches of the Stamm family, those of Kentucky are generally given to farming and to teaching.

The Stamm family was not old enough in Brown County to have members enter the Mexican War. Then little is known regarding what they did in the Civil War. Frequently the name appears in old records of veterans but it seems probable these were from the Pennsylvania family. Philip Peter died in 1863 and in his will shows on Jacob as in the army. But it is possible one or two older grandchildren may have served.

So far as is known none of the Ohio part of the family served in the Spanish-American War. It was World War I which brought the first known deaths. Even so only a few names are known out of the almost total service by those of that generation. Lewis Jacob Stamm, grandson of Jacob of Civil War days, died at Veteran's Hospital, Dayton, in 1937 from effects of being gassed during the war. William Elmer Fronkey, grandson of Charles Stamm, of Brown County, died at 21 in Camp Pike, Arkansas. A son, name not known, of Wesley Adam Stamm, also died in World War I.

In World War II three members of the family are known to have died. First was Charles Henry Schreiber, youngest grandson this time of Jacob Stamm, was shot down over England in March of 1944. First with the Canadian forces he was shifted to the A. A. F. and was returning from a mission across the Channel with radio equipment damaged. Unable to explain who he was as he tried to land on a strange field he was shot down. Second to die was John Noland Ronsheim, great-grandson of Jacob Stamm, who died August 15, 1944, in Italy on his 50th and final mission before he would have come home. He had received his first Purple Heart in April for severe wounds suffered over Austria, at which time he was recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross, an honor he was denied by death. He received his first Air Medal for shooting down an enemy plane over Bulgaria and later accumulated seven clusters and a second Purple Heart. Third to die was Wilbur Scott, great-grandson of Frederick Stamm, who was killed at Iwo Jima, February 17, 1945, when a shell landed beside him during fierce action, his twelfth major battle. Although many honors went to members of the family the highest award was probably the Silver Star awarded to Bertram Stamm, another great-grandson of Frederick, for action in France. He lives in Adams County, Ohio.

But the Stams in America were not alone in fighting Hitlerism. As early as November 11, 1937, for "alleged espionage and high treason" Robert Stamm, 34, was beheaded in Berlin. Then in April of 1942 it was in Father Stamm's little home at the edge of the town of Liebsdorf, Alsace, that General Henri Honore Giraud, French officer escaping from his German captors, was hidden before being guided into Switzerland a short distance away. Later, Father Stamm, who looked enough like Jacob Stamm to have been a full brother, was executed by the Nazis. Yet at least one Stamm would disown these distant relatives.

So ends this very brief story of a fine family, a story which could be expanded into a book did time permit. It is a family, Pennsylvania line, Swiss line, or the Ohio-Kentucky line, which has helped make America. The following papers add somewhat to what has been said. The outline tells the real story of its make-up.

The following material is condensed from what is found in histories of Brown County. Errors are corrected by information in brackets after each error.

Jacob Stamm was a native of Germany (Palatinate), born in 1825 and brought to this country when 15 by his parents, Philip and Mary Sigle (Seil) Stamm. The family settled in Brown County where Philip died in 1862 (1864). After the family had been separated for 33 years (may have referred to marriage of sister Elizabeth in 1842) a reunion was held in 1876.

Jacob Stamm is the oldest bandmaster in the county and in 1861 (if so he then served two years), he enlisted as leader of the regimental band in the 43rd Ohio Volunteer Infantry and served one year (was yet in army when father made will in 1862). He was leader of the Ripley band for many years. In 1878 (family says 1876 late during election) he received his first stroke of paralysis. Raised family of 12 children. (Only if you count those who died as infants or small children)

Charles Stamm, farmer, born 1837 (1835) in Germany. Lived in Washington Township, Brown County, until parents died. Father in May, 1862 (stone shows this as 1863) and mother in March of 1864 (no stone). Post office, South Fincastle (Eagle Township).

- - - - -
Henry G. Christman, born November, 1813 (both death record at church and 1860 census record shows he was born in 1818) in Alsace, Germany. When about 18 emigrated with parents to America. (See note at bottom) In August 1842 he married Elizabeth Stamm and they had eight children (see outline for this list). About 1842 (1860 census shows this as 1843) after marriage in Eagle Township moved to Pittsburg (Not listed in Pittsburg directories from 1845 to 1850) and stayed about eight years. (Census shows in Brown County before 1852 again.) In list of children record shows son Charles P., born in February of 1857. But in 1860 census shows this as 1855.

(NOTE: There is much confusion over the Christman-Stamm relationship dates. German records, copy herewith, show, probably in 1836-37 under Stamm names that of "John - - - son of Elizabeth Stamm". Brown County census for 1860 shows Henry G. Christman as 41 years of age and born in France (Alsace later part of Germany) with Elizabeth, age 40, born in Bavaria (Palatinate area). It then shows "John Christman" and under age "Dead", a most unusual entry. It shows he was a "Blacksmith" and born in "Bavaria" which fits the German records. The census was taken June 27, 1860, so error on ages of parents is positive. If Henry G. was born in 1818 and came to this country at 18 then his parents came in 1836 and not 1831 and it probably is a fact they were first married in the Palatinate immediately before the Christmans left for America. Then that Elizabeth, wanting to rejoin Henry, urged her parents into moving in late 1839. No official record has been found for the 1842 marriage, this being shown only in the old history printed in 1883. It may have been a civil ceremony to supplement an earlier church marriage. To augment the 1836 date over the 1831 record is the fact that Henry and Barbara Christman, parents of Henry G., bought land first in Highland County, Ohio, as of Pennsylvania, on October 22, 1837. Other records indicate Henry Sr., had a brother there earlier. This would bring into line all known facts and correct history errors.)

Waldmohr, March 18, 1913

Mr. Milton Ronsheim

Anderson, Indiana

According to your letter of February 4, I have made special investigation about the Stamm family. As a result I obtained the following:

About 1824, Philip Peter Stamm - a protestant school-master - moved with his wife Marie Elizabeth Seil, from Niedermohr by Kissel to Dunzweiler. The family owned no property there. They lived in a teacher's boarding house. About 1840 the whole family moved to America. An old man remembers some of the boys with whom he played in his youth. Mischievous boys, full of devilish tricks. A desire of a daughter caused them to move away.

From records I obtained the following:

- * Philip Stamm, born December 6, 1829
- * Henrietta Stamm, born June 29, 1832
- x* Carl Stamm, born March 27, 1835

John - son of Elizabeth Stamm

A Peter Stamm born 1818 in Niedermohr, married on May 19, 1840, to Margaret Meyer, born 1821 in Breitenleach. I can find nothing more than this.

The charges for the above will be 3 marks which you will please send at once.

Notes:

- * These are the last three children of eight. Peter is probably the oldest.
- x No Carl listed in family records and this probably means the son named Charles.

Part of letter by Lank (Lenfrey) Stamm,
Georgetown, Ohio, 1-27-1913

- - - -Grandfather Stamm (Philip Peter) and family - wife and eight children - four sons and four daughters arrived in this country during the summer of 1840. They came to Cleveland, Ohio - were thirty days crossing the water, had a very peaceful voyage across the ocean but their boat ran into an awful storm on Lake Erie and came near capsizing. They came from Duntzwieler, state of Bavaria, Germany. When they landed at Cleveland, Aunt Caroline (Peter's wife) wanted Grandfather to buy a farm near there as he had plenty of money to do so at that time. *But Grandfather had a brother living at the German settlement of Arnheim, in Brown County, and he was bent on coming here to see him before buying a farm. Our Grandfather left eight brothers in Germany. The family came on to Sardinia - - - - -. It was late the following spring when the "old Stamm farm" was purchased at Slab Camp, near Sardinia. It was so late that the neighbors told the family it was too late to plant corn. But the energy and resourcefulness of the Stamm was not to be daunted, and by activity and a favorable season a golden harvest was gathered late in the fall of that year.

The weather being so much colder in Germany than here during the winter they lost their meat the first year, as most of them did coming here, because they did not salt heavy enough. - - - - -

Grandfather Stamm was pretty well up in the world in Germany - - - - -. He was a school teacher there and taught school here. The family were clad in wooden shoes when they landed here, and I have heard my father say that Grandfather had a half-bushel of silver left after he had paid for the farm here.

- - - - - tell your mother I attended the funeral of my other aunt the other day -- Aunt Rebecca Stigler. - - - - -

L. E. Stamm

* Entirely in error as later checking of official record shows. See other pages as to reason for moving to Ohio.

 Again a family tradition which would hardly prove out as official land records show farm was purchased February 25, 1840. Farm experts say that at no time was corn planted earlier than April in this climate.

(NOTE: At this point may I say that in every case where material has been used official records are given place over family records and family records always over family stories or traditions. Unless otherwise backed up cemetery stones are placed on an equal with family records while census reports are placed slightly above this. All three, of course, depend on memory and not the written word. Even official records are wrong at times. Where a name or date seemed in error and correction was not available the space was shown blank. Edw. J. Ronsheim, Sr.)

* NOTE: Frank A. Ort, Bellevue, Ky., a son or grandson of Mary Elizabeth (Stamm) Ort failed to answer letters so nothing on family is known. (Page 10)

*NOTE: A note in The Bee, Ripley, Ohio, on March 25, 1954, shows that Mrs. Ada Sellers Stamm Aplin, 83, an Augusta, Bracken Co., Ky., widow died in hospital at Maysville from burns suffered at home, probably March 17. It seems that she was the widow of August Stamm and that they probably had returned to county from Chicago many years before. (Page 23)
